The address dictionary 4 for each country must be often changed due to reasons such as house-moving, new construction, and district reorganization. However, once address form setting information is set, it need not often be largely corrected. Hence, as shown in FIG. 3, the address form setting rules may be printed on an ~~{IC}~~ Integrated Circuit (IC) read out from the IC. In this case, the address form setting section 6 is constituted by an address recognition rule IC 6c and address recognition rule IC read section 6d.
